

FutUre VISION:

How to Avoid Armageddon

Our apathy today makes sure armageddom comes tomorrow
as millions enjoy a cosmic barbecue

Doing nothing
is the easiest way
to become part of a holocaust & radioactive stew

Tickets to "Mass Extermination" arr eazy ta obtain
but once dah show starts
the script is hard to change

If you'd like a see a different flick
reexamine your life scripts – believe or not you're co-authoring this

Sam: I'm just a tiny fart. I don't feel like I am co-authoring anything.

Tim: (gazing at Sam briefly before speaking) So you feel marginalized, like a digital serf inside a machine containing billions of other ephemeral beings like you?

Sam: That's right. I wish there were something I could do about it.

Tim: There is! Meditate and transcend all machinery. The source code for all programs exists within your brain.

Sam: (shaking his head) I tried that. Basically, suffering is unavoidable.
(pausing briefly) Hey, how about a beer?

- T Newfields

Begun: 2002 in Nagoya, Japan ≡ Finished: 2019 in Yokohama, Japan

