

Some thoughts about military recruiting

Kris: If people thought carefully about the human costs involved, would anyone join the military?

Sam: (puffing on a hand-rolled cigarette) People can be easily brain-washed into joining anything.

Ted: Yeah. And generally we realize we've made a mistake only after the fact.

Tim: Well, even though the information is all around us, most people don't see it: their minds are too cluttered.

Terri: (sipping a glass of wine, then coughing) . . . Don't expect too much from humans. Remember, genetically we are very similar to apes.

- T Newfields

Begun: 2018 in Yokohama, Japan ≡ Finished: 2020 in Yokohama, Japan
Creative Commons License: Attribution. {{CC-BY-4.0}} Granted

