

UNMASKED:

An Analysis of Hypocrisy

They talk about saving the environment while purchasing things they don't need.

Describing themselves as earth-buggers they make only token efforts to consume less ravenously.

Who are these hypocrites scampering about like centipedes?

They're ordinary people afraid to stand up for their beliefs & typical consumers worried about job security.

They're the skeletons of common folks fearful of uncertainties

*And yes ~ in many ways
I'm one of them:
how painful that is to concede!*

— T Newfields

Beg.: 1977 Nagoya ☆ Fin.: 2025 Shizuoka