

ONLY A HAMBURGER?

A reflection on the ramifications of beef consumption

Jes' holding a hamburger, right?

Well, that is only the surface ah the story.

You're also supporting an economic infrastructure, & Ronald McDonald's Way of Life.

You're directly approving animal slaughter & accepting what consumerism implies.

You are saying "yes" ta genetic engineering,
artificial ingredients & ridiculous employee wages.

That hamburger iz a manifestation
ah many global inequities:
it showz how millions lack enuf ta eat,
so that the rich enjoy cocktailz-caviar-n-beef.

Look closely between the buns:
the issues we face
are in each burger on yer plate.

Satoru: (sarcastically) Sounds like some vegetarian credo.

Ying: Yeah. The author probably had ambivalent feelings about meat.

Frida: Hey – all of us are meat. In the belly of time we're all being devoured, so why not enjoy the food that comes?

Dmiritri: Because what death with dignity is in a slaughterhouse?

- T Newfields

Begun: 2005 in Tokyo, Japan / Finished: 2019 in Yokohama, Japan

