

WORLD SHIFTS:

Some thoughts about textual consciousness

Dmiritri: Does this say anything to you?

Ying: Yeah, looks like the world is being sucked up by textual information.

Satoru: That can happen. Too much textual information can be blinding. Most of us are flooded with more information than we can possibly process.

Dmiritri: Yeah. We've got to remember that text is just one form of information. Our civilization relies too heavily on written words. In many ways, however, non-textual information is more important.

- T Newfields

Begun: 2002 in Nagoya, Japan / Finished: 2016 in Xīn-Táiběi, Taiwan
Creative Commons License: Attribution. {{CC-BY-4.0}}

