

COUNTER CURRENTS: Some thoughts about extinction

- Jules: What I like most about this art is that it requires no thinking.
- Ellesha: The best way to think is to take a vacation from thinking for a while – turn off the intellect for a period, then switch it back when needed.
- Philyra: The problem is that too many people are in permanent non-thinking mode. Their intellects seldom switch on.
- Soo: On the other hand, too much intellect with too little conscience – isn't that a recipe for disaster?
- Andrei: There are many recipes for disaster. In fact, nearly everything we say amounts to nonsense if carried out to its logical conclusion.
