

LEARN REACTIONS:

Exploring the Alchemy of Learning

How do you feel about the classes you take?

Is learning effective?

Or is the experience a waste?

Ah, so much variation in each classroom!

Could better space exist to get entombed?

What we call "education" is often an extended social dance.

Deep learning involves neuro-chemical change in a mystic trance.

Melissa: (frowning) Humph, this seems like rubbish to me!

Tim: Well, Sometimes art invites us to look in ways that are oblique:
not all messages appear head-on.

Liao: All I see are various images with word fragments. No idea where they come from or where they are heading.

Tim: Is that so different from our ordinary consciousness? Most people's minds are filled with discursive bubbles that obscure energy under the surface.

Satoru: Yeah, but where are the 'learner reactions'? I don't see any such thing in this art.

Tim: Well, we're reacting right now. The question is: what are we actually learning?

- T Newfields

Begun: 1996 Shizuoka. Fin.: 2023 Yokohama