

WORLD BOOK : Some Thought on Entangled Metaphors

Liao: (scratching his head) Isn't the world like a book in many ways?

Nadya: If so, it would have a nearly infinite number of pages.

Gus: Most people readily describe things they cannot understand as "infinite". However, often they are actually very large, but finite.

Bill: Whatever . . . my patience is finite and running out.

Gus: (muttering to himself) What a lame conversation!

Liao: (overhearing him) Relax. The outcome of the universe will not change an iota by the things we say.

- T Newfields

Begun: 2000 in Nagoya, Japan / Finished: 2020 in Yokohama, Japan

