

THE MAGIC OF BOOKS:
A textual panorama

Books can become windows
that help us view future possibilities or coffins of cellulose to encase discarded dreams.

Books can become bulldozers to transform our mental landscapes
or cement reinforcements that solidify our ideological space.

Books can serve as battle armor
to defend ideologies
or caustic bromides to attack any set of beliefs.

Books can become magnifying glasses
that highlight details unseen
or veils covering up facts with paper reams.

Books can become strings
connecting disparate ideas
or ink brushes rendering unpleasant facts less clear.

Books have limitless possibilities - open more of them, explore and see.

- T Newfields

Begun: 1990 in Utica, NY, USA / Finished: 2020 in Yokohama, Japan

