

Love Poems: Nonsense from the Heart

INTO LOVE:

Some Thoughts on the Incomprehensibility of Love

Cindy: Can we ever understand love?

Don: We can certainly understand passion, but I wonder about love . . .

Aiko: (shrugging her shoulders) Don't look to me for insights. I can barely manage to keep my head straight, and am often confused by my emotions.

Bai-Luo: We attach all sorts of notions to emotions such as love, yet sometimes I feel emotion itself has no inherent meaning. Most people take their emotions far too seriously.

Don: Hmm. I can't say I feel comfortable with that.

Cindy: (sighing) Yeah, few people are . . .

- T Newfields [Nitta Hirou / Huáng Yuèwǔ]

Begun: 2000 in Nagoya, Japan  Finished: 2018 in Yokohama, Japan
Creative Commons License: Attribution. {{CC-BY-4.0}} Granted

